Shadow Towers.

For your sovereign suar, my friend, All my lovers are estranged, Shallow-lovers without end; But last night they were avenged.

In the middle of the night.
One by one I saw them rise,
Passing in the ghostly light,
Silent, with averted eyes.

First, my master from the South With the laurels round his brow, And the hitter-amiling mouth, Left me-without smiling now,

'Fare three-well' (they said) "we go Scorned as shades and dreams. Adjent ove thine earthly friend, but know Shadows still thou dost pursue." A. Many P. Rosinson.

Fulian Kennedy, the well-known carsman of Yale, is manager of the Edgar Thompson Stiel Works at Pittsburg, which has turned out 224 tons of steel in one day.

Levi P. Morton, the newly appointed Minister to France, is described in a foreign paper as a "baronet-looking man, quite affable and demo-cratic, pet with a certain banker's tone." General Moltke has of late years been able t obtain little steep, owing to extreme nervousnes; his entire amount of sleep does not amount to over three hours every night. His health is much

General Van Euron, United States Consul-Gereral to Japan, and William Walter Phelps, Minister to Austria, are brothers in law, and have outlier residences adjoining each other at Hackensack, New Jersey.

She was decorating her room with pictures, and she perched her husband's photo up on the top-most nail; then she nat down to admire her work, and remarked quietly: "Now everything is lovely and the groom hange high!"

It is most certain that ill tongues would be silent, if ill ears were not open; hence it was an opposite saying of the ancients, that the teller and keaver of slander should both be hanged—the one by the seese, and the other by the core, When a Boston girl is presented with a boque she says: "Oh, how deliciously sweet; its frag rance impregnates the entire atmosphere of the the room." A down-East girl simply says: "It mells scrumptions; thanks, Renben."

The property of Mrs. Langtry, of London, has been sold by anction. She had an income of $1,300 a year, but the excessive demand of the so-cial current into which she and her husband floated overwhelmingly involved them into debt.

Dore is described as finishing, in deep medit-Fore is ensertion as miniming, in deep means-tion and with a sad face, a great picture called the Vale of Tears. It represents sorrow-laden crowds of men and women of all races and all creeds and conditions wending their way to the Light of the World, a figure of sunbeams.

A Norwich couple who had a pet cut which had grown belpiess from age and extremely fitty, put it out of its misery by the agency of chloroform. They buried it in the garden, and planted a rose bush over the remains. The next morning it appeared at the door to be let in, and had the rose bush over the remains. bush under its arm .- Donbury News.

"Bull Bun" Russell, who has been traveling through the country with the Duke of Sutherland party was asked the other day what impression had formed of America, and replied very frankly:

"Where you can't raise wheat you raise gold, and where you can't raise gold you raise lead, and where you can't raise lead you raise silver. It's something everywhere—s country of wonderful

Side by side in a rural cemetery near Boston are two graves with simple headstones, on one of which is sugraved the word "Mother," and on the other the word "Father." On the former is a hand pointing upward, but the latter bears no such device. It is impossible to conceive a more delicate way of intimating that, while the mother has unquestionably ascended, there is some doubt as to the old man.

A little girl was invited, not long since, with other children, to visit a lady who had the misfecture to be a deaf mute. She entertained the children in her own way and made the time pass sery pleasantly. When they returned to their home the mother of the fair, blue-eyed four-year old asked her what the lady said to her. The little fairy replied: "Why, mamma, she did not say anything—she had a lame mouth."

The Burlington man says: "If the young man who stood under the after window of this office last Tuesday night and sang, "Let Me Die when the Lillies are Blooming," will kindly stand where the foreman can teach him with the mallet the next time he comes, we will do all that human power can do to get him in about two laps ahead of the sarliest lily of the saxon. No man who sings as he does should waste any time in waiting for the lillies when it comes to dying.

A sem cat sits upon a shed,
And warbles awardly to his mate:
"Oh, when the world has gone to bed,
I love to sit and most till late."

The London Ness, apropos of Mr. Lowell's popularity and fitness for his position abroad, remarks that "men of letters are the instural diponatists of America, and excellent diplomatists ther make." And remembering "Bigelow Papers," and the 'immortal economical reflections' of Bret Harte's "Bill Nye," the fiction of James and Howells, the writing of Bancroft or James and Howells, the writing of Bancrott and Mr. Morgan, the New admits that "the American Caucasians are not played out, and we may perhaps expect from them the poet who is to succeed our foremost living masters."

The Paris Figure describes King Kalakana as a young man of thirty-two years, with a complexion broared but not black, a look sweet and bright, and an intelligent face. He arrived in Paris yesterday [July 6] at 6 L M., direct from Eams. He is accompanied by M. Armstrong, his Minuster of State, and by Colonel Hastings, his chamberiain. In his suite are a respectable number of various servants, who although natives of a land where people are not always very delicate about the matter of food, seem perfectly contented with a European bill of fare. The young ruler was received at the railway station by M. Callin de Paradis, the Hawaiian Consul-General, and Count de Gourcy, secretary of the Consulase. The party immediately took cabs and slied the principal parts of our capital. In a few houns they returned to the railway station, and seated themselves in a train for London, where Kalakana is to account a some siting of Paralishme. He was dressed very simply, in tourist fashion—in a bitse cloth suit, and with a small case has with a game streamer, English style."
